ROBBERY OF A POSTOFFICE.

Four Thousand Dollars Worth of Stamps Stolen.

Secretary Noble Furnishes Information—Irrigation.

Letter From Secretary Noble.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—An answer to inquiries in regard to irrigation surveys contained in a recent Senate resolution was sent to the Senate to-day by Secretary Noble. He states that the Director of the Geological Survey actually surveyed and marked the boundaries and areas of the sites for reservoirs by him selected under the Act of 1888, and the tracts are so segregated and so marked that they can be discovered on the ground and delineated on the Land Office maps. The reservoir selections contain only so much land as has in each instance been reserved as intended to be used for the storage of water. It was not intended, the Secretary says, that the surveys and selections under the Act of 1888 were to be carried to the extent of planning a system of canals, ditches, creeks and furrows for the distribution of water over farms, which it is deemed the people, when they come to cultivate these lands, can better do themselves. The general purpose and plan of the Department, the Secretary says, is to preserve the sources of water supply from the possession or appropriation by individuals or corporations. It is believed, he says, to be the duty of his department, so long as this statute remains, to enforce it, that its fruits at least in the preservation of the sources and reservoirs of water may be kept under either National or State Governmental control.

Congressional Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Oates of Alabama, rising to a question of privilege, offered a resolution for an investigation of the charges of corruption against members of the House contained in a recent editorial in the National Economist.

After some discussion the Speaker ruled the resolution not a privileged one. On doing so, he said the editorial was of the vilest character. It made no accusation except by inference; it made no statement upon which anybody could be expected to predicate a belief or conviction; that it was within the knowledge of every member that paragraphs of this character are floating around in the newspapers of the country, and the House could see the inconvenience which would result to the business of the House if any member had the right, on the production of a paragraph like this, to demand an investigation.

The House sustained the decision of the chair, an appeal having been taken by Oates; yeas 95 nays 71.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Senate amendments to the sundry civil bill.

Judgment For Breach of Contract

LONDON, July 31.—In the action brought here arising from the transactions of the copper ring Justice Day has held that the guarantee of the Comptoir des Comptes could not be enforced, and has given judgment in favor of the Societe des Metaux for a breach of contract amounting to £200,000.

Postoffice Robbery.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Robbery of $4,000 worth of stamps from the post-office was discovered this afternoon. They are believed to have been taken by a suspicious looking man who probably took a train for Boston.

Blythe Will Case Decided.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—Judge Coffey to-day decided the celebrated Blythe will contest, involving property valued at about $4,000,000, in favor of Florence Blythe, the illegitimate child.

A Party With a Long Name.

LANSING (Mich.), July 31.—The Union-Greenback Farmers' Alliance Convention was called to order this forenoon. The list of standing committees was selected and it adjourned until this afternoon.

The Stock Yard Deal.

CHICAGO, July 30.—S. W. Allerton and P. D. Armour were seen this morning in regard to the story published in the morning papers to the effect that a syndicate including these gentlemen had arranged for the construction of mammoth canning establishments and stock yards near San Francisco.

Peter E. Her of Omaha, Neb., the head of the San Francisco end of the syndicate, in an interview, stated that 3,500 acres of land had been purchased at Baden, thirty miles from San Francisco, and that this immense tract is to be used for the proposed establishments.

"The syndicate," said Mr. Her, "is composed of George W. C. Simpson, President of the George H. Hammond Packing Company; Nelson Morris of Armour & Co.; C. U. Daly, Armour's partner; George F. Swift and S. W. Allerton & Co. The company will start a bank, so the stockmen will have no trouble in getting cash on delivery of their stock. It will run refrigerators and deliver meats at long distances, and will, furthermore, run its own steamers, branch railroads, etc. The establishment is to be in working order by next January or February."

"Yes, that's correct," said Allerton, when shown the story. "That is stated correctly in every particular, as far as I can see. The syndicate has been formed and will commence operations as soon as possible."

"Is Armour interested in the deal?"

"Well, I can't speak for Armour. You will have to see him, but it is my understanding that Armour is connected with the company. However, I cannot say positively as to that."

Webster of Armour & Co., was also seen. He denied the story. "That is a mistake," he said.

"But Allerton says it is correct."

"Well, I suppose it is, partially. There are stock yards in California in which Armour is interested, but this story of building canning establishments out here is incorrect. There is no such deal on foot with which Armour is connected."

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

A LAMENTABLE ACCIDENT.

A Petted Baby Boy Drowned in the English Mill Ditch.

A sad drowning accident occurred to-day about noon, whereby a little child barely three years of age lost its life in the waters of the English Mill ditch.

E. J. Gallagher, a carpenter by trade, lives with his wife and five children—three girls and two boys—in a little cottage near the corner of Sierra and Sixth streets. The English Mill ditch runs immediately back of the house, which is protected from it by a fence and gateway with a latch. The other side of the fence there are a few feet of ground bordering the ditch, across which a footbridge leads to an outhouse. There are also three steps leading down to the water level to enable the family to bucket up water.

The three-year-old boy, Eddie, when last seen by Mrs. Gallagher was sitting on the back steps, and as she returned to the kitchen her last injunction was "Eddie, be careful not to fall in." Twenty minutes later she missed him and frantically notified the father, who was employed near by.

The body of the little boy was found floating and bobbing up and down like a cork near Newt Evans' place. All attempts at resuscitation were useless, the little fellow was gone beyond hope, and the corpse was taken back to his home.

The supposition is that the little fellow after being left on the stoop by his mother started to go to the edge of the flowing stream and in some way stumbled in. Though the water is only 20 inches deep at that point, it flows with a swift current, that quickly carried him off beyond available human hearing. The wind also was blowing heavily at the time, preventing his infantile cries from being heard. The afflicted mother and father were the recipients of much condolence and fearful sympathy by the neighbors in the vicinity.

STILL ADVANCING,

And a Still Further Advance Probable.

A dispatch from Washington says: Silverware dealers here and in the South have been notified by the manufacturers that prices have been increased 15 per cent. owing to the rise in silver bullion, occasioned by the adoption of the Silver bill; also, that a still greater increase in prices is anticipated and have been advised to give orders for future delivery. It is stated at the Treasury Department that the price of silver bullion is expected to go to $1.15 per ounce within a few weeks. The parity for silver bullion is about 129.29, and it was stated during the discussion of the silver bill that if there should be absolute free coinage bullion would reach that parity within ninety days after the measure became a law. Purchasers of silverware are all paying 15 per cent. more than they were paying thirty days since.

THE GRANT MONUMENT SCHEME.

The Argentine Republic Revolution.

Racing at Saratoga and at London.

Five-Cent Contributions.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Lucius Briggs, a business man of Glasgow, Cnn., has suggested a novel plan for raising funds for the erection of a monument to General Grant. He has written letters to all the Governors of the Northern States to secure their aid, and has laid before them the suggestion that every man, woman and child of the 45,000,000 people comprising the population of the Northern States contribute five cents each. This would yield a total of $2,250,000, which would be all that is necessary for the purpose. To collect the money he suggests that an organization be effected in every school district in the State to which contributions should be paid.

[The above might prove a success if the people are convinced that the monument is to be erected in an American city.—ED. GAZETTE.]

The Races.

SARATOGA, July 31.—In the first race of one mile Lavinia Bell won, Longshore second and Gerlie D third. Time, 1:43 1/4.

In the second race, Saratoga stakes for two-year-olds, three-fourths of a mile, Balgown won, Palestine second and Blacklock third. Time, 1:17.

In the third race of one and one-sixteenth miles, Reclaire won and Worth second. Time, 1:53. Only two starters.

In the fourth race, Adirondack handicap, a mile and a furlong, Rhono won, Drizzle second and Clio third. Time, 1:56.

In the fifth race of six furlongs, Objection won, Australis second and Dyer third. Time, 1:16.

In the sixth race of six furlongs, Bradford won, Ballahoo second and Cornelia third. Time, 1:54 1/4.

The Favorite Beaten.

LONDON, July 31.—Only two starters came to the post at Goodwood to-day for the Prince of Wales stake three-fourths of a mile. Siphonia was the favorite in the betting three to one, but Orion won.

Anti-Semetic Laws.

LONDON, July 30.—The Times says: The Russian Government has ordered an application of the edicts to 1882 against the Jews. These edicts hitherto have been held in abeyance. According to them the Jews must henceforth reside in certain towns only. None will be permitted to own land or hire it for agricultural purposes. The order includes within its scope towns and hundreds of villages that have large Jewish populations. No Jew will be allowed to hold shares in or work mines. The law limiting the residence of Jews to sixteen provinces is to be enforced. No Hebrew will be allowed to enter the army, practice medicine or law, to be an engineer, or to enter any other profession. They will also be debarred from holding posts under the Government. The enforcement of the edicts will result in the expulsion of over 1,000,000 Jews from the country.

Peace Thought To Be Restored.

NEW YORK, July 31.—A dispatch received in New York to-day from Buenos Ayres says: "Telegraphic communication with Buenos Ayres via Galveston is reopened."

The officials of the Mexican Telegraph Company in this city say that the fact that a message came over the Transatlantic line is an indication that peace reigns throughout the Argentine Republic.

Somebody Needs Punishment.

BUENOS AYRES, July 31.—During the insurrection here the ironclad fleet, which joined the revolutionary movement, bombarded the city two days. Serious damage was done many buildings, especially to those in the vicinity of Plaza Victoria. One thousand persons were killed and five thousand wounded.

Reported Samoan Disorders.

SIDNEY (N. S. W.), July 31.—The steamer Lubock, from Apia, brings rumors of disorders in the Samoan villages. In the opinion of Europeans these disorders point out the necessity of England, Germany and the United States forming a proper Government for Samoa.

The Cholera Epidemic.

MECCA, July 31.—The cholera epidemic here shows no sign of abatement. The deaths average eighty a day.

An Unexplored Section.

Cowlitz, Wash., a county that has been settled forty years, has 7,000 inhabitants, thirty miles of railroad and has the second largest Courthouse in the State of Washington, has a section unexplored by the foot of white man and less known to civilization than is the heart of Africa. About fifteen townships within the county are unsurveyed. A portion of the unsurveyed tract is occupied by white settlers, but fully half of it is dense unpenetrated wilderness.

There are messages at the Western Union telegraph office for John H. Clark and Geo. Manuel.

Mrs. J. B. Marshall left last evening for Boston, going by way of San Francisco and the Northern Pacific.

Mrs. A. G. Fletcher and little daughter will leave this evening on a visit to her parents and other relatives and friends in Waldo county, Maine. She goes via the Northern Pacific.

A Mr. BEGGS, conservative candidate for Parliament from Kensington, is quoted by "Fair Trade" as follows:

"We have not succeeded in convincing a single foreign nation—we have not succeeded in convincing even our own Colonies, with one important exception, that a free interchange of commodities represents the highest form of commerce. Free-trade has been on its trial in this country for a period of fifty years, and, as I have said, free-trade at this moment must be pronounced more or less a failure."

THE Boston Commercial Bulletin recently had an instructive article on "Increased Cost of Production in Europe." It shows that the tendency in England is toward higher wages and shorter hours for labor, while coal, a most important element of cost, is becoming dearer owing to the ever increasing depth of the mines and the consequent greater cost of mining, and it states that last winter English pig-iron reached a point where, even without duty, it could not undersell the American product.

THE English syndicate, which has got hold of the Chicago breweries has already attempted to carry things with so high a hand that it is likely to overreach itself. It has not only doubled the price of beer, but proposes to compel purchasers to continue their custom. In several places the English syndicates have found that in buying plants they did not succeed in buying business. This, says the Bulletin, may prove another instance in point.

CHANCELLOR CAPRINI is defending the bargain by which Germany has acquired Heligoland in exchange for concessions in Africa. As Lord Salisbury has also been busy in defending his cause in Parliament, it may be assumed that it is a pretty fair deal. Prospectively Uganda is worth a great deal more to England than Heligoland, and the latter is a strategic importance to Germany.

A MONTENEGRO demand for indemnity adds to the troubles thickening around the Porte. It is less weighty than if the proposed matrimonial alliance between the royal house of Romanoff and Petrovitch had come off according to programme, but without that it is sufficiently significant.

SOMEBODY proposes that next time the census shall be taken in the winter, when there are not so many people away from home. But the Boston Herald thinks the arrangement would be bad for New England, for it's usually "a cold day" when the Yankee gets left.

THE Czar contemplates expelling from Russia the Jews, numbering about four millions. Such a wholesale movement of population has not occurred in modern times, and that it is deemed necessary speaks ill for the intelligence of the parties to the scheme.

THE advocates of the division of Texas into several States have overlooked one important obstacle in the way, to-wit, the people of Texas. They are proud of their domain, and they don't propose to have it split up, even if the Democratic party does want it.

WE will have to pay a trifle more for our tea on account of the passage of the Silver bill, but with corresponding better prices for wheat, cotton, etc., and renewed mining activity, we can well afford it.

THE free trade Democracy of Nevada seem to be greatly exercised lest there be a difference of opinion on the tariff between the President and his Secretary of State.

Families not already supplied should lose no time in procuring a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is the only remedy that can always be depended upon for bowels in all its forms. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Shoemaker & Co.

CONDENSED CLIPPINGS.

THREE died at Joliet prison recently a life convict, who first entered the place December 7, 1869, making twenty years, four months and eight days actual time served. There are but three convicts in prison who have been there for a longer period.

DURING 1889 the Auditor of Montana signed warrants for bounties to the amount of $8,000. The following is the role of victims: 2,827 coyotes, 900 wolves, 101 wildcats, 5 mountain lions, 77 bears and 54 lynxes. Total, 4,090 animals.

VOLAPUK has received a very severe blow. An English society of scientists has decided that the German professor's universal language is wanting in many particulars, and that the language most suitable for general use is medieval Latin, "adapted to modern needs."

CHINESE Inspector at San Diego reports to the Treasury Department that the smuggling of Chinamen into this country by way of Mexico is a profitable traffic of no small dimensions and backed by a very heavy capital, with the principal headquarters at San Francisco and China.

THIRTY-four regular life insurance companies of the United States possess invested assets of $713,000,000, and a surplus of $92,000,000. In other words, they have $100.15 in hand for every $100 they owe. These companies paid to their policy holders last year the stupendous sum of $82,600,000.

THE Chinamen of Astoria, Ore., amuse themselves with a huge top made out of an empty twenty-five pound lead keg. A square opening is cut in the side, and it takes three men to spin it—one to hold the top and two to pull the string with a stick, which sets it in motion. While spinning it sounds like the whistle of a steamer, and can be heard three blocks away.

A FARMER living near Bridgewater, N. D., had a narrow escape from death the other day. He was plowing in a field with three horses abreast when a shower came up and he crawled under the horses to keep from getting wet. When the rain stopped he left his shelter and started across the field, but had not gone more than a few steps when a bolt of lightning struck the animals and instantly killed all of them.

ONE of the wealthy men of Stark County, O., who died the other day at the age of seventy, was buried in accordance with his will, which was that he be buried in "the contemptible and blasphemous doctrine of eternal punishment should be permitted to talk" at his funeral, no stone was to mark his grave, his wife was not to wear black, and the mourners were to have a big feast as soon as the funeral was over.

TEXAS farmers have been greatly tormented by the depredations of rats, which have destroyed their crops in many cases. In order to exterminate the rodents all the entrances but one to a burrow are stopped up. At the open one an iron teakettle is placed with a pipe leading from the nozzle down into the burrow. Sulphur is placed in the teakettle, a fire made under it, and the fumes of the sulphur being driven into the burrow every rat in it is quickly killed.

IN an electrical exhibition in San Francisco an illustration was given of the saving that was effected when gas is used as a fuel instead of an illuminant. During the evening's run the gas engine, which works the electric plant, consumes 300 cubic feet of gas, and furnishes 53 sixteen-candle power incandescent lamps, while 53 sixteen-candle gas lights, with five-foot burners, would require 618 feet for the same length of time. This is a saving of over fifty per cent.

FLOHISTS in Brooklyn are watching with interest the progress of an ivy vine over the face of a block in Seventh avenue, a little beyond Flatbush avenue. The vine has its root in front of one tall brown-stone house, and in the course of three or four years it has nearly covered the fronts of four other houses. Those acquainted with the habits of the ivy say that if undisturbed the vine will shortly cover the whole block with its greenery. Oddly enough, ivy planted on the opposite side of the street does not flourish.

LEMONS are used for soap in many countries where they grow. When, for instance, the men and women of the West Indies want to wash their hands they squeeze the juice of a lemon over them and rub them briskly in water until they are clean. There is an acid in the lemon similar to that in soap. And in countries where oranges grow in great plenty country gentlemen use the cheapest kind for blacking their boots. The orange is cut in two and the juicy side of one half is rubbed on the soot of an iron pot and then on the boot. Then the boot is rubbed with a soft brush and a bright polish at once appears.

At Noontide in the Smoky Mountains of Tennessee.

The shadows of the great dead trees in the midst of the settlement were at their minimum in the vertical vividness of the noontide, writes Charles Egbert Craddock. They bore scant resemblance to those memorials of gigantic growth which towered, stark and white, so high to the intensely blue sky; instead they were like some dark and leafless underbrush clustering about the sapless trunks. The sandy stretch of the clearing reflected the sunlight with deeply yellow glare, its poverty of soil illustrated by frequent clumps of the woody mullein weeds. The Indian corn and the sparse grass were crudely green in the inclosures about the gray, weather-beaten log-houses, which stood distinct against the dark, restful tones of the forest filling the background. The mountains with each remove were every changing disguise of distance: shading from somber green to dull purple; then overlaid with a dubious blue; next showing a true turquoise richness; still farther a delicate transient hue that has no name; and so away to the vantage ground of illusions, where the ideal poises upon the horizon, and the fact and fantasy are undistinguishably blended. The intermediate valleys appeared in fragmentary glimpses here and there; sometimes there was only the verdure of the tree tops; one was cleft by a canary-colored streak which betokened a harvested wheat-field; in another a blue sapphire circle, where the vertical sun burned in the waters of a blue salt "lick."

PRIMARY ELECTION

Of the People on Saturday, Aug. 16, 1890,

For the purpose of electing delegates to the said State Convention, the Primary Elections to be held on the above date, at the law of the State and the instructions of the committee.

The following test will be required of each elector voter at the said Primary elections:

"I am a citizen of this State and will support the nominees of the Republican party."

The following Resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this committee recommends to the National Republican platform for 1892, including the declaration that "the Republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money" and that it "condemns all efforts to demonetize silver."

Resolved, That the persistent neglect of Secretary Windom to increase the coinage of silver to the maximum of four million dollars per month, coupled with his attempt to influence Congressional legislation so as to perpetuate silver demonetization, is a serious violation of the silver plank of the National Republican platform, an attack on the rights and interests of the miners, farmers and workers of the land, and an act of party perdition that should call for the retirement from the councils of administration which is pledged to help and not hinder the demonetization of silver.

Resolved, That the Republican party is in favor of free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver; that it holds to this principle as a test of party faith and a test of party vigilance; that it will permit of no abandonment or modification of this principle; that it will support every effort to prevent the repeal of the law of 1873 by which silver was demonetized, and who desire the establishment of free and unlimited coinage as the law of the United States of America, to join in electing delegates to a Republican State Convention.

E. D. BOYLE, Chairman.
 C. F. LORD, Secretary.

ALL IN AN EVENING.

The Lame Arm Materially Assisted in Important Events

"Why, no," said Mrs. Warren, rather primly and with a faint frown on her pleasant, well-favored face; "I can not say I think her pretty, Dr. Collins. She is too plump and too vividly colored, so to speak."

"She has vivid coloring, certainly," said the doctor, leaning forward from his seat beside Mrs. Warren on the sitting-room lounge to view the gray tulle in the parlor—to wit: Mrs. Warren's adopted niece, Marian Morgan, petite, delicate-featured, straight-nosed, soft-eyed; Marian's friend, "Dolly" Taylor, tall and plump, red-cheeked, flaxen-haired, blue-eyed; James Fuller, the clever young lawyer of the place, tall, rather dignified, already a member of the school board and failed of for State Representative; and Ned Seely, not of the place, but recently from the West, shorter and not so dignified, but humorous and jolly and energetic, if somewhat unconventional.

That was the quartette, and a thoughtful observer might have remarked Mrs. Warren and Dr. Collins, who had a settled habit of dropping in, made six.

"Jim Fuller," the doctor added, "doesn't appear to be criticizing her. He seems pretty well suited."

Was the doctor faintly malicious? Mrs. Warren was ambitious and proud of her handsome niece, James Fuller was much respected, and steadily rising and prospering. Yet here was Marian's bounding school-friend blandly monopolizing him, and Marian talking with jocular Ned Seely in a corner.

The doctor put up his hand to cover a smile.

Mrs. Warren cleared her throat so discreetly that the doctor felt a pang of remorse.

"Marian is fond of her," she said, stiffly, "and I have nothing against her." ("Excepting Fuller being struck with her," thought the doctor.) "But the type of girlhood that best suits me is not hers."

She looked at dainty, quiet Marian. Ned Seely's right arm was stiff in the elbow, and was relating to Marian how it had been hurt. He had been wrestling with an obstinate mustang out in Wyoming—and Marian was laughing so much that it was difficult for Mrs. Warren to believe her ears.

"He's an amusing fellow," Dr. Collins remarked, shifting the subject; "brilliant as a dollar."

"Possibly," said Mrs. Warren, icily smiling. "I think him too talkative and fond of joking. I hardly approve of him."

If he were joking with Dolly Taylor, the doctor thought, it would be all right.

The doctor had been a widower for about the length of time that Mrs. Warren had been a widow. Possibly there was a link between them and a reason for his clairvoyance as to her innermost desires.

"What are they up to?" he queried, catching a stray word in Dolly Taylor's gay voice. "Are they going a-sliding?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Warren, with a harassed sigh. "It was Mr. Seely's idea, and a harum-scarum plan I consider it. I am afraid it will be too much for Marian."

"Too much what? Too much of Ned Seely?" thought the doctor, irrespressibly, and wished he dared say it.

But Mrs. Warren was in the parlor, troubled and fidgety, and the doctor followed.

The quartette was making preparations. Dolly Taylor was winding a white scarf around her fair head; her blooming face shown forth from it like a rose. Marian was buttoning her long cloak down her trim length with her blue-mittened fingers; Mr. Fuller was getting on his overshoes, and Ned Seely, while making unkind jokes about their size, was putting on his muffer with a joyous flourish, his eyes on Marian. The two big sleds waited out in the moonlight.

The doctor followed his hostess, just in time to witness her desperate but determined suggestion. She had accompanied the four to the hall door and stood there, straight and almost rigid in her anxiety, a wary, petticoated general.

"Mr. Fuller," she said, "I want to ask you to draw Marian to the hill and home again. You have a lame arm, Mr. Seely." (Marian was starting away with Mr. Seely.) "I don't wish her to walk in all this snow. Her shoes are thin."

"Why, I have my rubbers, Aunt Sarah," said Marian, in gentle wonder. But the young lady bowed politely—"Certainly!"—and assisted Marian to his sled and tramped off with long strides, and Ned Seely followed with Dolly Taylor.

Mrs. Warren shut the door with a relieved sigh and a victorious smile.

Dr. Collins not only smiled, but laughed outright, and then attempted to disguise the laugh in a yawn.

"Well, I've still got to see to Judge Branch's gout to-night," he observed, getting into his own overcoat. "Suppose I leave my medicine-case here till I come along back? I shan't need it for the judge; I shall advise him to eat less. Then I can see if the youngsters get home safe," said the doctor, with a faint grin.

"Very well," said Mrs. Warren, with the calm dignity which the doctor had always admired.

The long hill was white and hard and shone bright in the moonlight. Behind the black pines rose, and somewhere among them an owl hooted distantly.

"GHOSTLY!"

said James Fuller. "You aren't afraid of ghosts, Miss Morgan?" said Ned Seely. "Not with me for protection?"

"Oh, no!" said Marian, laughing softly.

"If I should see a ghost, Mr. Fuller," cried Dolly Taylor, "I'm afraid I should pinch you black and blue! Once when I was driving with my cousin we saw something white in the road and I clutched his arm till—"

"Ah! you did?" said Mr. Fuller, in a low voice. "Oh, for a ghost!"

How, alas! had it come about? He was placing her carefully on his sled for their five-and-forty-foot coast together, looking down rather anxiously into her glowing face as he did so. And Ned Seely and Marian were half way down the hill, going at so breathless a rate that Marian put forth a timid, unconscious hand, to be warmly grasped, though not so unconsciously, by her cavalier. By what subtle, irresistible means, then, had it come about?

"I'm afraid it's late," said Marian, borne easily up the slope on Ned's muscular left arm.

He looked at his watch.

"Half-past six," he said, unobtrusively, and was rewarded by Marian's sweet-toned mirth.

"For shame, Dolly!" she called to the lagging pair behind. "We must go. It must be ten o'clock."

"Oh!" cried Dolly, with a gasping laugh. "And I've a letter to write to mamma, and—all my bangles to put in curl-papers."

Just then the snow had been worn to the slipperiness of ice, and her foot slipped. Down she came with the substantial thud of a hundred and thirty pounds, and did not rise.

James Fuller bent above her.

"Hurt?" he gasped, with an arm around her—which may have accounted for Dolly's calmness.

"Yes," she rejoined, promptly. "You don't think I would continue in this humiliating attitude if I wasn't hurt. My ankle's sprained."

"Oh, Dolly!" Marian faltered in pity.

"Miss Taylor!" James Fuller murmured, dropping on his knees beside her but the pretty, plucky victim laughed.

"I shan't die, you know," she assured them. "I shall merely be laid up for—Ouch! but it twinges!"

"I must take you home," said her attendant, in the depths of yearning anxiety, "and get the doctor."

"The doctor," said Ned Seely, "is liable to be found in the neighborhood of Mrs. Warren's."

Dolly was already lifted in James Fuller's long arms, and he was possibly rather slow about it—put gently on his sled.

He tucked her scar more closely about her throat, with proprietary coolness restored her muffled settled her cloak warmly about her feet, and strode away with her.

Ned Seely turned his good-looking, genial face to the quiet handsome girl who clasped his arm, and taunted.

"I shouldn't be able to pull her home, you see. I've a lame arm."

Maria struggled with a sense of duty and a pang of mortification—she had so hoped he hadn't seen through it.

Then she laughed, with her head low; but a bent his own until he could see her face.

"Never mind," he said. "Marian, she will be disappointed, but it is right that we should pause for that? Not if we care for each other, dear girl! And we do!"

"Miss Taylor," Mr. Fuller was saying, far ahead in the moonlight, running the risk of obstacles in his path by turning his tall head constantly backward—"Miss Taylor, I must begin with an apology. You haven't known me long, and I don't know how you regard me, but a man knows when he's lost his heart. If you don't pick up mine and take care of it, Miss Taylor—"

"I don't know," said Dolly, with a sober face. "Did it—has it occurred to you, Mr. Fuller—oh, look out for that stone—have you thought that Mrs. Warren seems—Obl dear!"

"Without conceit," said James Fuller, grimly smiling—"yes; Mrs. Warren does seem. But it has likewise struck you, I presume, Miss Taylor, that Miss Morgan doesn't seem?"

"Not a bit," said Dolly, through a bubbling laugh.

"There you have it, Dolly," said Mr. Fuller, with the consciousness of a logical practitioner, "two kinds of a ring do you want—one diamond or more?"

Dr. Collins, creditably to Ned Seely's powers of observation, was at Mrs. Warren's when the quartette returned.

Mrs. Warren, meeting them at the door, looked askance at the manner of their returning.

"Dolly sprained her ankle, Aunt Sarah," said Marian.

"And I couldn't draw her home with my lame arm," said Ned Seely.

It was all over; one glance of Mrs. Warren's apprehensive eyes told her so.

But when the sprain had been set, and the young gentlemen had at last gone, and the doctor had helped Dolly upstairs, and Marian had gone too, the doctor yet remained.

He joined Mrs. Warren, in their accustomed manner, on the sitting-room sofa.

"Sarah," he said, "the power of love is beyond the paltry control of the mightiest of the earth. Is it not?"

"Yes," said his hostess, sighing; but her voice had a softened unsteadiness.

"Ned Seely," the doctor added, without apparent connection, "is the smartest young fellow I know; owns his own ranch out West by his own efforts. He'll make a fine husband for any girl."

"I trust so," said Marian's aunt.

"But Wyoming," said the doctor, "is a good way off. Of course you can visit; but I fear you would be longed between times if it were not for me. I think, Sarah, you had better adopt me in Marian's stead, don't you?"

"I will consider it," said Mrs. Warren, losing some of her self-possession in a blush.

And she did—Saturday Night.

Whence Come the Flies.

So you want to know where the flies come from, do you, Lucullus? Well, the cyclone makes the house fly, the carpenter makes the saw fly, the driver makes the horse fly, the grocer makes the sand fly, the boarder makes the butter fly, and if that is not enough for you you will have to pursue your future studies in entomology alone.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A sea-serpent, 300 feet long, was seen to coil itself up in slippery folds on the coast of Florida last night. Three reliable persons saw this creature distinctly.

Reader, the above is a yarn. If people would believe the following truthful statement as readily as they swallow sea-serpent stories, it would be the most wonderful cure for the most wonderful ailment of the age. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, if taken in time and given a fair trial, will actually cure consumption of the lungs, which is really a curable disease. This wonderful medicine does not do as we recommended, but it does what we have said. It will cheerfully and promptly return all money paid for it. Can any other medicine possess sufficient power over that fatal malady—Consumption, to warrant its manufacture and sale under such trying conditions. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not only the most wonderful alternative, of blood-cleanser, known to medical science, but also possesses superior nutritive and tonic, or strength-giving properties, which assist the food to digest and become assimilated, thus building up both strength and health. It is a sure cure for Bronchitis, Throat and Lung Diseases, accompanied with lingering coughs. It is absolutely unequalled.

A well bound book.

50,000 copies have sold in the last six months.

It is a $3 book which is given away.

OUR PURPOSE—We are making this new departure for two reasons:

First. We wish in this way to express to our Old Subscribers our appreciation of their patronage.

Second. We hope to induce a large number of New Subscribers to take our paper.

OUR PLAN—We shall give a copy of this three dollar book to each one of our subscribers this year, old as well as new, as follows:

A new subscriber who sends for the WEEKLY GAZETTE and STOCKMAN for one year at $2.00 in advance, we will give a copy of this $3.00 book.
